NIF ARTS & JUSTICE TOUR

Visit Israel with the New Israel Fund

November 8-16, 2017

JOIN NIF for our unique arts and justice study tour and explore the critical social justice issues affecting Israeli society today—civil and human rights, religious freedom and tolerance, racism, violence and extremism, and economic parity.

We will meet the leaders and change agents of Israel's social justice movement, and discuss the inequities plaguing Israeli society, and the partnerships being formed to combat them.

We will combine visits with well-known Israeli art institutions such as the Israel Museum, the Bat Sheva Dance Company, Ein Hod artist village, and the HaBima Theater, with visits to fascinating, off-beat art experiences like the social justice graffiti of Jerusalem and the painted storefront grates of Machane Yehuda market. We will make the connection between art and justice in both the visual and performance arts of Israel.

Create open and thoughtful spaces...Equate making art with making change.

WITH A PARALLEL FOCUS ON THE ARTS IN ISRAEL,

we will have an opportunity to visit artists in their studios, attend a theater performance, listen to music, watch a movie with the filmmaker, explore museums and much more. Our tour of the Israeli arts will focus on the artists' ability to use their talent and creativity to deliver messages of hope and despair, fear and inspiration, and create open and thoughtful spaces in which ordinary citizens can wrestle with the questions of social justice and equate making art with making change.

Dates: November 8-16, 2017

Costs: $4,150 per person, double occupancy (land cost only)
